```python
#!/bin/python

#---------------------------------------------
Code review
Based on the unit tests below, try and explain
the age rule that func() is trying to enforce.
#---------------------------------------------

import unittest
class MyTests(unittest.TestCase):
        def testNormalData(self):
                self.assertTrue(allowed(3))
                self.assertTrue(allowed(5))
                self.assertFalse(allowed(10))
                self.assertFalse(allowed(15))

        def testExtremeData(self):
                self.assertTrue(allowed(7))
                self.assertTrue(allowed(8))
                self.assertFalse(allowed(9))

        def testExceptionalData(self):
                self.assertFalse(allowed('apple'))
                self.assertFalse(allowed('banana')) self.assertFalse(allowed(True))

if __name__ == '__main__':
        try:
                main()
        except NameError:
                print "No main() method. Trying Unit Tests."

        try:
                unittest.main()
        except NameError:
                print "No Unit Tests to run."
```